Arterial Capital Management have today released their internationally recognised, annual review of the key demographic and political drivers and financial activity within the pharmaceutical, medtech and biotech sectors.

About the Arterial Annual Review of Healthcare:

Arterial's annual review of global healthcare is considered by many family offices, research analysts and wealth management groups to be the leading, authoritative report on the economic and political drivers and activity within the life science sector.

Arterial provide readers with an in-depth analysis of the past years' investment trends within biotech, medtech and pharmaceuticals. The report analyses deal flow between private and institutional investors, identifies trends by sub sector, product and geographical / regional placement and concludes with our predictions for the year and decades ahead.

About Arterial Capital Management:

Arterial Capital Management is a private equity firm focused exclusively on the global life science sector. We specialise in providing equity funding to biotech, medtech and pharmaceutical companies.

We invest our own money into each project on the same terms as other investors and are motivated primarily by a 20% carried interest on the successful realisation of a holding. Investment deal size is typically €10-75m.

Dumitru Malic, said:

"What makes the Arterial Annual Review of Healthcare unique and valuable is the meticulous review of Global Life Science and the scrupulous analysis based on first-hand experience of a globally recognised team."

Mickael Marsali, Co-Founder of Arterial said:

"Family offices and pension funds need reliable and trustworthy data for their clients. Life science offers immense opportunities for uncorrelated alpha."
